Scholarships

Undergraduate Scholarships - Somaliland

Applications for Undergraduate Scholarships in Somaliland are now open.
Please see below for details.

If you are a resident of Somaliland, you may be eligible to apply for an undergraduate scholarship.

We manage scholarship programmes in Somaliland for students who demonstrate both academic potential and personal need. Our current programmes include scholarships for undergraduate students at local universities, with priority given to young women and those pursuing studies in fields that contribute to community development.

Edna Adan University Scholarships

Through our partnership with Edna Adan University (EAU) in Hargeisa, we provide undergraduate tuition scholarships for students in health-related programmes. These awards support academically strong students who face financial or social barriers to higher education. The scholarships cover tuition fees only, for up to three years of study.

Number of awards and value

- 10 scholarships in total.
- Tuition fees only, up to USD $600 per academic year.
- Support is available for up to three years (Years 2–4 of study).

Eligibility criteria

Applicants must:

- Be enrolled in Year 2 of one of the following courses: Dentistry, Midwifery, Laboratory Sciences, Nursing, Public Health
- Have achieved a minimum Year 1 GPA of 3.0.
- Demonstrate personal need, including at least one of:
 - From a low-income family
 - Orphan
 - Close relatives not working
 - Applicant with a disability
 - Family opposition to attending university
 - First female in the family to join higher education
- Submit a signed note of approval from their Academic Dean.

What are we looking for?

Selection for all WTI supported scholarships is based on the following priorities:

Giving back: We ask scholarship recipients to put what they learn into practice in the future for the benefit of their communities, regions and to the broader Windle community. If you have a track record of community involvement, your application will be considered favourably.

Student status: We give scholarships to people who have refugee status, have been internally displaced, marginalised, in need, or otherwise affected by conflict.

Financial need: You should be able to demonstrate genuine financial need, and be unable to meet the costs of your study independently.

Gender: To address the huge gender inequality in education among the communities in which we work, we seek to give priority to girls and women. One of our key focuses is on dealing with the disparity in communities, schools, and employment sectors by offering scholarship opportunities that empower women.

Origin and coverage: We give scholarships to people who are resident in the regions of Africa in which we work.
